Teachers' Day Celebration

Dear Students,
We are truly touched and grateful for the wonderful Teacher's Day celebration you organized for us. Your thoughtful gestures, heartfelt performances and the time you dedicated to make the day special mean the world to us.
It was a joy to witness your creativity and enthusiasm in honouring us and it reminded us of why we love what we do. You made us feel appreciated and cherished, and for that, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.
We are incredibly proud to be your teachers and celebrations like this make us even more inspired to continue guiding and supporting each of you on your learning journey.
Thank you again for making Teacher's Day so memorable!
With gratitude,
Your Teachers.

Celebrating Love and Wisdom: Grandparents Day was a Heartwarming Success!

Benefits of Intergenerational Relationship

In our rapidly evolving world, where the pace of change seems ever accelerating, the bond between different generations is more crucial now than ever. These relationships offer invaluable benefits not only to individuals but to society as a whole. Intergenerational relationships are vital in bridging the gap between the wisdom of the aged and the vigor of the youth. My grandmother was born in 1952. She is a traditional person, so traditional that she loves washing her clothes by her own hands. Recently she had fractured her right hand and was unable to do so. It was during this period that I introduced her to a washing machine and the benefits it provides us. Now she uses the washing machine a lot and saves a lot of time, which she uses in doing more productive work and she's grateful to me for introducing it to her. This intergenerational relationship between me and my grandparents helps both of us a lot as we teach each other and learn from each other. So, to all my dear friends I know it is really comfortable to talk to someone from our own generation because we say that it is easier to talk to them as they understand better, but at the same time when we start an intergenerational relationship the benefits, they provide us are invaluable. So let us take a step away from our comfort zone, make an effort to reach out to someone from a different generation, and see the beautiful benefits that they provide us.
